

PHOTOS: CAROLINE PHILLIPS

6. From left, Susan Carter, Robin Higham and Fran Ward at The Leading Note Foundation's Cocktails and a Concert held at the British high commissioner's official residence on May 17, 2010. 7. From left, Tina Fedeski, British High Commissioner Anthony Cary, Clare Cary and Gary McMillen. 8. From left, Paul Marleyn, Frédéric Lacroix and Margaret Munro Tobolowska.

THE LEADING NOTE

With no bugs trying to sneak onto the guest list, British High Commissioner Anthony Cary and his wife, Clare, were happy to take the reception outside at the "Cocktails and a Concert" it hosted at Earnscliffe on Monday for The Leading Note Foundation. Some 60 guests attended the fundraiser for the foundation's community-building OrKidstra and KidSingers programs, which gives children from under-served communities the chance to learn and make music.

On hand were the foundation's founding members: executive director Tina Fedeski and her husband, board chair Gary McMillen (the couple owns The Leading Note music store on Elgin Street) and NAC Orchestra cellist Margaret Munro Tobolowska. She performed a one-hour concert inside the residence with cellist Paul Marleyn and pianist Frédéric Lacroix. Also seen were board members Sylvia Gazsi Gill, Susan Carter, Fran Ward and retired diplomat Robin Higham. As well, arts journalist Sarah Jennings, arts patrons Harvey and Louise Glatt and visual artist Jerry Grey were seen.